Most people avoid eating dangerous food, simply because they don't want to get sick. However, there is one food that can be deadly, yet some people eat it on purpose. It's called the puffer fish. This kind of fish, called fugu in Japan, live in the Pacific Ocean. Some people die every year from eating fugu. In fact, the emperor of Japan is not allowed to touch it. The insides of the puffer fish are very poisonous and contain 275 times more powerful than the deadly poison cyanide.

Usually nothing bad happens when fugu is on a restaurant's menu. Customers feel great after the meal. That's because chefs are trained to remove the insides of the puffer fish before they give it to customers. If they miss even a small amount, the fish is not safe to eat.

Puffer fish is very expensive. A plate of fugu costs more than 200$ in some restaurant in Tokyo. Besides being dangerous to eat, the fish is very ugly, with small spins all over its body. Also, it can puff, or blow, itself up to double its normal size. Why do Japanese risk so much for such an ugly and dangerous fish? Well, some people like taking risks. And fugu tastes wonderful.

43. Which of the following sentences best shows the main idea of the passage?
a. It is important for restaurant to have trained chefs.
b. Some food are not safe to cook, especially at home.
c. Some people are willing to risk their lives to eat fugu.
d. Fugu is one of the most expensive foods in the world.

44. Which of the following statements is TRUE according to the passage.
a. The fish can puff itself up to ten times its normal size.
b. The most dangerous part of the puffer fish is its spines.
c. The poison in puffer fish can be dangerous even in small amounts.
d. It is called the puffer fish in English because of the spines that cover its body.

45. There is enough information in the passage to answer which of the questions?
a. How much does an average puffer fish weigh?
b. How many people die per year from eating fugu?
c. How do chefs remove the insides of the puffer fish?
d. How much does a plate of fugu cost in some restaurant?
