4	متن زیر را بخوانید و به سوالات آن پاسخ دهید. For a long time, bilingual dictionaries were regarded as the main tools for language learning activities because they had to do lots of translation. In fact, such dictionaries did their job very well because translation was the end point. However, there was a shift of attention to monolingual dictionaries when more and more people around the world needed communication. Unlike bilingual dictionaries, monolingual dictionaries provide more information for their users. For example, they offer word definitions, sample sentences, common errors made by language learners, and a lot more.	P

Linguists believe that using monolingual dictionaries will result in vocabulary development and also fluency in writing and speaking. Still, many language teachers say that their students find working with monolingual dictionaries quite difficult. This is probably because their students are at basic levels of vocabulary knowledge.

Looking up a new word in a monolingual dictionary will lead to facing some unknown words, which makes it much harder for beginners to enjoy vocabulary development. As a result, it is suggested that monolingual dictionaries be introduced to language learners after they have learned enough words.

51). What is the main idea of the passage?

a) Using bilingual dictionaries for better translation jobs

b) Challenges and advantages of using monolingual dictionaries

c) Developing more vocabulary through monolingual dictionaries

52). What does "they" in line 7 refer to?

a) bilingual dictionaries

b) monolingual dictionaries

c) people

53). Why is it suggested that monolingual dictionaries not be introduced very early?

a) They contain technical words.

b) There are unknown words in the definitions.

c) They don't provide sample sentences.

54). Why were bilingual dictionaries used more in the past?

a) The main purpose was communication.

b) They were easier to use than monolingual ones.

c) They were more suitable for translation.

Respecting parents is an important value in every family, nation, or culture. In fact, there is no exception to this. Parents love and care for their children and work hard to give them a good life. Showing respect to parents is a way to appreciate their efforts and sacrifices.

Listening to parents is one way to show respect. When parents share advice or instructions, paying attention and trying to understand their words demonstrates respect and gratitude though some children may disagree with this. Parents ‘experience often helps them guide their children toward good decisions.

Helping at home is another way to respect parents. Doing chores, keeping personal spaces tidy, and assisting with household tasks show appreciation for their hard work. Simple words like "please," "thank you," and "sorry" also express respect.

Disagreements with parents are natural, but it is important to handle them calmly and politely. Expressing opinions respectfully helps maintain harmony in the relationship. Fighting or shouting can damage trust and understanding.

Respecting parents strengthens the bond between them and their children. A respectful relationship creates a happier and more supportive home environment for everyone.
