L. Readings comprehension. (4)

Psychology recognizes two types of research,experimental and differential. the former is concerned mainly with the overall processes governing human activities and the latter sets out to establish individual differences in performance .More recent studies have demonstrated the need for a third type of psychology study namely, that which has to do with human development .Rather than considering this aspect of human performance as a part of the first two types, scientists have noted that developmental research indeed belongs in a separate category in and of itself. Piaget's work would indisputably fall in the area of developmental theories that have had great impact on both experimental and differential research . When examining Piaget's studies it is necessary to keep in mind that while his theories have been highly influential,his methodology has been strongly criticized .The primary shortfall of his work had to do with a lack of definition and a standardization in his data and experiment design.

35. What is the central goal of experimental research?

36. What does developmental psychology belongs in?

37. Which branch of psychology is controversial?

38. What are 3 different types of psychology research,mentioned in the passage?

B. True or False

39.Piaget's methodology has no problems. True ☐ False☐

40. Experimental research tries to arrive at a general classification of individuals. True☐ False☐

WISH YOU ALL THE BEST.
