۱۳	متن زیر را بخوانید و به سوالات زیرپاسخ دهید . If a person uses two languages in everyday life, he or she is said to be bilingual. Only a few people whom we would call bilingual can speak, read, or write both languages equally well. We call those who can do this " balance bilinguals". But most bilinguals have a preferred language, which they use most of the time, and then a second language, the level and use of which will vary considerably from one person to another. Children raised bilingually from a very early age are most likely to have an equal command of both. There are bilingual communities in many parts of the world. South Africa, Belgium, Wales, Ireland, and Canada are some examples of countries where such communities exist. Bilingualism also occurs in other areas of the world where immigrant groups have settled but have remained not fully absorbed into the society around them. They keep up many of their own customs and continue to speak their own language at home. The following examples are taken from a long list: Chinese and Italians in Australia; Turkish migrant workers in Germany; Asians in Great Britain; and Spanish speakers in the United States. In many cases, the bilinguals are not themselves immigrants, but people whose parents, or even grandparents, moved to the country in question and have continued to speak to their children in their own mother tongue.	3.5
