Passage 2 Mahmoud Hessabi

Professor Mahmoud Hessabi was born in Tehran in 1903 to the family of Abbas and Goharshad Hessabi. His family's hometown is Tafresh, Markazi province, Iran. At the age of four, his family moved to Beirut where the young Hessabi attended primary school. He was still in secondary school when World War I started prompting the closure of his school; Hessabi continued his studies at home and in 1922, he earned a degree in road engineering from the American University of Beirut. After briefly working for the Ministry of Roads, Beirut, Hessabi traveled to Paris for further education. He continued his research in physics at Sorbonne University in France, and got his Ph.D. in physics from that University at the age of 25 in 1927.

Professor Hessabi was the only Iranian student of professor Albert Einstein, and during his years of scientific research, he had meetings with well-known scientists. During the congress of " 60 years of physics in Iran", the services rendered by him were deeply appreciated and he was entitled " the father of physics in Iran". Professor Hesabi was a dedicated scientist who did important works for improvement of our country, Iran. He founded Tehran University and also the first modern observatory in Iran. In Tehran, Hessabi was affiliated (connected) with the University of Tehran and organized the science and engineering faculties of the university. Professor doctor Hessabi died on 3rd of September 1992 at the University hospital of Geneva. Dr. Hessabi had always wished that the final dwelling of his body would be his mother-land, Tafresh. Now this wish has come true. May his way be full of followers and his memory everlasting.
